What is a Hackerspace?

A hackerspace is a place to

- Collaborate on interesting projects
- Study or practice on your own
- Learn from knowledgeable people
- Make friends

What is Tokyo Hackerspace?

Tokyo Hackerspace is both a location and an organization. The organization consists of people enthusiastic about acquiring and applying a wide variety of skills to learn, teach others, and help society. The location is a garage space, giving us the ability to do industrial things like drilling, cutting and welding. We have a large selection of tools (both hand and power) test/ measurement equipment, plus storage space for members' equipment and supplies.

We have classes and workshops where you can :

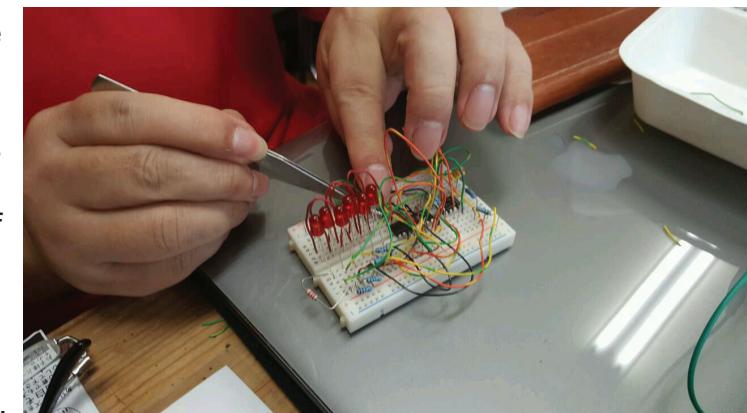

- learn about electronics
- gain programming skills
- learn about Linux and BSD
- design circuit boards
- use a laser cutter
- learn welding and metalwork
- build robots and quadcopters
- learn to use power tools safely

How can you take part?

We have weekly meetings that are open to the public and at no cost. Every Tuesday evening at 19:30 is the English-language meeting. Every Wednesday evening at 19:30 is the Japanese language meeting. No reservations are needed. Just come along!

Membership Benefits

Benefits of becoming a member include the ability to use the space 24/7 whenever you like; discounts on classes and workshops (all classes/workshops cost less for members than non-members); the ability to keep a "member box" at the space to hold your projects, parts, equipment, tools etc; the ability to use any of the Tokyo Hackerspace parts stock free of charge; and most importantly, ensuring the continued existence of Tokyo Hackerspace as a resource for everyone!

We are located about a 5 minute walk from Nakaitabashi station, which is eight minutes from Ikebukuro station on the Tobu Tojo line.

We look forward to meeting you!
